

Christina studied at the University of Bristol for her Bachelors' and completed the Bar Vocational Course at Inns of Court School of Law in London. She was admitted to the Cyprus Bar Association in 2004 and has since been in practice, representing clients before the Supreme Court of Cyprus, the District Courts, the Employment Tribunal and the Cyprus Commission for the Protection of Competition. Christina regularly assists clients in obtaining freezing injunctions and other urgent interim relief, including Mareva and disclosure orders against banks and other third parties. Christina enjoys and has considerable experience in coordinating and project-managing large-scale and complex disputes, which are often of high value and multi- jurisdictional. She has a particular interest and expertise in civil fraud cases and company / joint venture disputes, but regularly works across a variety of other sectors, including insolvency and conveyancing. She is a member of the Committee on Civil Procedure Rules and Reform of the Cyprus Bar Association and has previously participated in a panel discussion in the 2nd English Cypriot Law Day: Using Evidence from Related Cases: The Cross-Over Between Court, Tribunal and Regulatory Proceedings.
